LEVEL 4

The Commercial Law course consists of three levels (4, 5 and 6). Full-time Undergraduate students study 120 credits per year. Core modules are compulsory and must be undertaken by all students. Optional modules are modules that students can choose from a list of available options. Elective modules are free choice modules offered at other courses (Business Information Systems, Finance, Economics, Business Management, and Computer Science).

At Level 4, students will take six core modules, each worth 20 credits: Public Law, Contract Law, Legal Skills, Tort Law, Civil Law, Criminal Law. At Level 4, the study curriculum focuses on introducing students to foundational legal concepts and basic practical skills.

The Public Law module examines key contemporary issues in constitutional, administrative, and human rights law, including forms of government, constitutional doctrines, and constitutionalism.

About The Course

Key topics in Public Law include the structure and functions of major governmental institutions, the distribution of power between central and local authorities, the principle of parliamentary sovereignty, an introduction to administrative law, including judicial review, and the protection of human rights, along with recent reforms to the legal framework.

During the Contract Law module, students will explore how contracts are formed, including key concepts such as offer, acceptance, and consideration. Besides, students will examine the contents of contracts, focusing on understanding the different types of terms, such as conditions, warranties, and innominate terms.

Contract Law is important because this module is the foundation for many other modules in the second and third years of the Commercial Law programme.

Dr. Alisher Pulatov
Dean of the School of Law, Technology and Education

“Our Commercial Law programme is considered a distinctive course, selecting the best students.

The Commercial Law graduates are recognised as premium professionals in the country’s legal sector. The remarkable success of our alumni reinforces this reputation — 96% of our graduates secure employment within just three months of graduation.”

LEVEL 5

About The Course

At Level 5, students deepen their legal knowledge through a combination of core and optional modules.

Core modules offered to students will be Company Law and Governance, International Sales Law, Banking and Finance Law, and Professional Legal Skills, each worth 20 credits. Optional modules include Intellectual Property Law, Employment Law, Property Law, and Corporate and Financial Crime (20 credits for each optional module). Besides that, students will be able to choose one elective module from the WIUT module catalogue, which will help them earn 20 more credits.

One of the most challenging yet very interesting modules at Level 5 is International Sales Law. Students will gain exposure to English law (including the Sale of Goods Act 1979 and relevant case law) as well as key international instruments governing international sales, such as INCOTERMS 2020, the CISG 1980, UCP 600, and ICC documentation. Various types of contracts used in international commerce — such as sales contracts, bills of lading, insurance contracts, contracts of carriage, and documentary credits — are examined in detail.

WIUT LAW STUDENTS ACHIEVE HISTORIC SUCCESS AT JESSUP 2025

WIUT's Commercial Law student team made history by advancing to the Top 16 (Octofinals) of the world's most prestigious law moot court competition — the Philip C. Jessup — placing our university among the very best in international legal education.

Impressively, WIUT placed ahead of world-renowned institutions such as Harvard, Oxford, and Moscow State University (MGU), among many others. Karimaxon Xabibullaxo'ja, a Commercial Law student at WIUT, was ranked among the Top 30 Oralists globally at the 2025 Jessup Competition.

About The Course

STUDENT EXCHANGES

The WIUT's Law Department is planning to offer its students an exciting opportunity to study at a partner university abroad. Destination countries will include the UK, France, Poland, Slovenia, Malaysia and Turkey.

This initiative will provide Commercial Law students with a unique chance to complete part of their bachelor's degree modules overseas, gain valuable international academic experience, and broaden their personal and professional horizons.

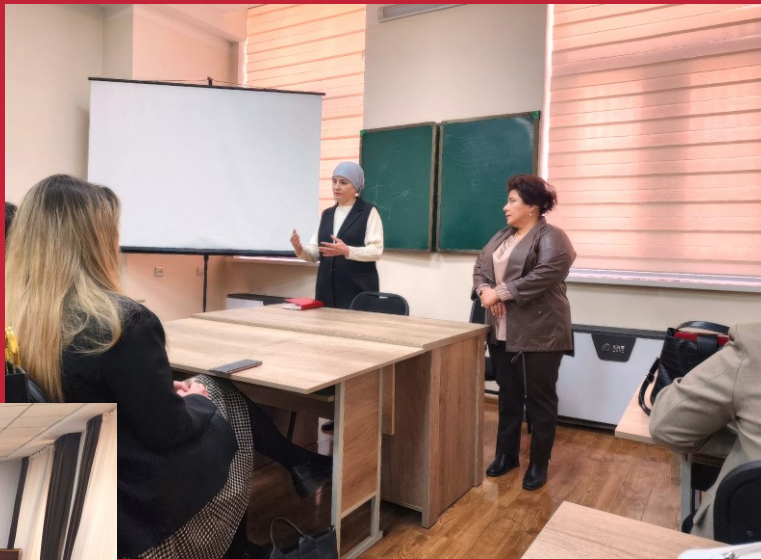

Level 6 students will be offered the following three core modules: Public International Law, International Trade Law and Regulation and International Investment Law. Students will choose three optional modules or two optional modules plus one elective module from the WIUT module catalogue. At Level 6, the following optional modules will be available to students: Dissertation in Law, EU Trade Relations, Technology Law, International Commercial Arbitration, Entertainment and Media Law and Work Placement.

In their final year at WIUT, many students choose to undertake the Dissertation in Law module, which enhances their research, analytical, and critical thinking skills. This research experience strengthens students' profiles and improves their chances of success in the selection process for master's programmes abroad. Students themselves select a research topic for their dissertation. The dissertation writing process is supervised by lecturers from the WIUT's Law Department. Common dissertation topics include gender inequality, foreign investment disputes, subsidies in WTO, authorship of AI-generated works, and other topics. Law dissertation students have the opportunity to present their research findings at the WIUT Research Society Student Conference and the New Academic Talent Competition, both of which are held annually on the WIUT premises.

UZBEK LAW

Alongside English Law and International Law, all students of Commercial Law have the opportunity to study Uzbek Law, which is offered as an extracurricular module. Students engage with a broad spectrum of legal disciplines such as Uzbek Contract Law, Business Law, Criminal Law, and more — gaining deep insights into the legal foundations shaping modern Uzbekistan. Earning a certificate in Uzbek Law gives graduates a competitive edge when seeking employment in Uzbekistan's growing legal sector.

The teaching of Uzbek law is delivered by both seasoned legal practitioners and distinguished scholars in the field.

This year, we had the honour of hosting experts from the Lawyers' Training Center under the Ministry of Justice of Uzbekistan who shared their valuable expertise with our students. Students engaged in an in-depth study of major branches of Uzbek law, such as Constitutional, Administrative, Criminal, and Civil Law. Additionally, as part of their studies in Uzbek law, students participate in field visits to various state authorities, including local courts.

During their visits to local courts, students observe real trials and engage in open dialogues with judges to enhance their understanding of the judicial process.

96% EMPLOYMENT RATE

Commercial Law graduates are in exceptionally high demand across the legal industry. Many of our students are recruited by international law firms in their final year at WIUT. Our graduates pursue careers not only in legal practice, but also across a wide range of fields, including education and research, logistics, banking, consulting and non-profit organizations such as embassies and UN agencies. ALUMNI

“WIUT gave me all the tools necessary to excel – not only in legal work, but in life and further studies. At Westminster, I gained a solid foundation in legal knowledge, but more than that: I learned how to question, to contemplate, and to analyse – skills that have shaped the way I think and lead today. The mindset, built in the classrooms and debates of WIUT, carried me forward. After graduation, I was accepted into the University of Oxford for my Magister Juris degree, fully funded by the Chevening-Oxford-Weidenfeld-Hoffmann Scholarships. That experience deepened my global legal perspective and opened doors I once only imagined. Since then, I have led legal work on some of the largest international banking transactions in Uzbekistan and worked closely with international financial institutions on multi-million-dollar deals. I am proud to be a WIUT alumna. And I hope more students realise that what starts here can truly take you anywhere.”
